CANTERBURY .- To-night will appear at the Canterbury a number of new star performers, among whom is W. A. Wray, the most astonishing performer of the age. He performs on different musical instruments. Also, Mons. Deverney, an excellent performer. Cherry Belle to-night in "Chair-ology," and "Have You Seen Her." First appearance of Jennie Walton the cerebrated danseuse.

GROVER'S THEATRE.-First appearance this season of the great tragedy and comedy combination, E. L. Davenport, J. W. Wallack, and Miss Susan Denin, who will appear to-night in Shakspeare's sublime tragedy of "Othello. The lovers of tragedy will be on hand to-night to receive their old Washington favorites with a crowded house. To-morrow night Wild Oats and the Morning Call.

SANDERSON'S MINSTRELS .- This fine band of performers have consented to remain four more nights with us—Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. This celebrated troupe will perform at Odd Fellows' Hall, Navy Yard, to-night.

ODD FELLOWS' LEVEE TO-NIGHT .- We take pleasure in announcing to the public that Columbia Lodge, No. 10, of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will to-night give a grand concert and levee at Odd Fellows' Hall, 7th street. Every arrangement has been made that will tend to the comfort and pleasure of the occasion. An able address will be de-livered, after which an excellent string band will furnish music for those fond of the dance. Let the friends of No. 10 make themselves known to-night. No postponement on account of the weather.

SEVENTH WARD LINCOLN AND JOHNSON MEETING.—A large and enthusiastic meeting was held in Island Hall, by the Lincoln and Johnson Club, on Saturday evening. In the audience, we noticed quite a number of ladies, who manifested much interest in what was said and done. The excellent band engaged for the occasion, performed its part of the exercises admirably well. It belongs to a permanent company of cavalry, from Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania, which is now stationed at Camp Stoneman, at Giesboro Point. After the preliminary business had been disposed of, the President of the Club, Mr. P. A. Bos well, introduced to the audience Mr. H. A. Pierce, of California, who addressed the club in an eloquent and intelligent speech on the political issues of the day, which was received

General Carrington, District Attorney, then appeared on the stand, and was received with tremendous applause. Gen. C. said he did not attribute this flattering reception to anything he had done; but that it was the overflowing joy of loyal hearts in behalf of the country. He said he had a great many friends in the Seventh Ward, but mere personal friendship could not elicit such exhibitions of joy. He was glad to see that the right spirit pervaded the audience; was glad to see it so enthusiastic; and was also glad to see so many soldiers present. He knew they had done their duty in the field by the cartridge-box, and knew they would also do their duty on the 8th at the ballot-box. He wished to know what his fellow-citizens had come to Island Hall for, and what they were doing there. Well, he said, he knew. The child was christened, and his name is Abraham Lincoln. Addressing the soldiers, he said they should pray for the Union and fight for the Union, under the flag. He hoped he would be excused for talking to the soldiers, for he once was a soldier himselr.

To the ladies present he said he would like to say something to them, but was afraid. He had talked to very many ladies when he was young, but always made a fool of himself when he did so. He was glad to see them there, especially in so good a cause. The devotion of women was firm, steadfast and true. Go to the hospital, see lying there a soldier who is wounded, sick at heart, desponding, with no kind sister, wife or mother to press his fevered brow or soothe his pillow, he has almost ceased to desire to live, when hark! a footstep, a voice attracts his attention, and he revives. 'Tis the voice of some loved friend who has come to minister to his wants, and, by the untiring devotion and kind care of that wife, mother or sister, he finally rallies and recovers, and once more enters the field and strikes another blow for freedom and his country, his Government and his flag. After the speaker had discoursed a while longer, and was about to take his seat, some one in the audience wished him to "tell them something about Bill Gary." He resumed by saying that he a night or two since passed by a McClellan club-room, and there was Gary addressing the club, and all he could hear him say was: "it's unconstitutional; it's unconstitutional;" which was about all they had to say. He could not illustrate it better than by relating an incident which occurred in Virginia a few years since. It was proposed to build a rail-road from "Possum's Hollow" to the Devil's Den, across a very high mountain. The folks of these two places never met but that they had a quarrel; and, while one party wanted the railroad constructed, the other was decidedly opposed to it, and swore it should not be done. He, while in conversation with General of "Possum's Hollow," asked him what he thought of the idea of constructing the railroad; the General thought it an excellent thing. Just at this time Col. Fireball, of the "Devil's Den," came up, and he declared it was unconstitutienal, and swore that if a train of cars ever crossed that mountain, he would be d-d if they would ever get back again, and pulled off his coat and wanted to whip the General; when the General told him, if he licked a man he wanted to lick a cleaner one that Col. Fireball. He remarked that, out there, if a man killed a rattlesnake he was immediately made a brigadier general; he thought if a man killed a copperhead he should at once be made a major general. [Cheers and laughter.] in speaking of slavery, he said it was dead; that secesh had killed it, and he would now let it and the Confederacy die together. He said the opposition insisted that the war was an unconstitutional one. He was of a different opinion, and knew that the Executive was doing but its duty, as the laws of war pro-vided that, in case of civil war, the President should resort to arms to quell any insurrection which could not be suppressed by the civil power; that foreign powers in Europe had even queted the same in relation to their own difficulties,

In reverting to General McClellan he said the General pronounced this an unrighteous and unboly war; he pronounced the war a failure, and withal, expected the soldiers to sup-port him in the coming contest. Could the gallant men in the field support him who had pronounced the war a failure, after having lost so many of their comrades? Could they vote for him who has thus attempted to dishonor the gallant dead? Could they now abandon the contest when victory is within their grasp, and leave their brave comrades in dishonored graves, some of them brothers, who have yielded up their lives and spilled their warm and patriotic blood in defense of the best government on earth? No, never.

Who was responsible for the war of 1812? Democrats. For the war of Mexico? Democrats. For the repeal of the Missouri Com. promise? Democrats And who is responsible for the present war? Democrats. And they have been the cause of all sectional strife and threaten a sectional movement in case McUlel-

General C., after some further remarks, took his seat, amid the applause of the audience The club then adjourned to next Wednesday evening, at 7 o'clock, to hear the good news.

FORD'S THEATER.-This theater, which, from the commencement, has given us standard prices, now announces East Lynne for this evening. Most of our readers are familiar, e novel on which the play is founded. The beauty of a sister's love for an out-cast, but innocent brother, and the grateful fidelity of those in humble life to their employers, are touchingly drawn. So, also, is the pathetic incident of the erring and dis-carded wife and mother, who altered past re-cognition, like a ghost of her former self, reinhabits the happy home she madly lost, and listens, in anguish, to the very song she sung in her early bridal days, while the bridegroom who then listened, now hears it again from the lips of the fond wife, who has replaced her in his heart, while the smiling forgetfulness of the woman that drearily gazes upon them, seems a mockery of the words that ring like a death-knell on the heart: When other lips and other hearts

Their tales of love shall tell;
In language whose excess imparts, The love they feel so well.

There may perhaps, in such a scene, Some recollection be, Of days that have as happy been,

And you'll remember me. DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.—Shortly after 9 o'clock last evening an alarm of fire was sounded from Box No. 21, at the corner of New Jersey avenue and C-street, which was caused by the avenue and C-street, which was caused by the issuing of flames from the extensive feed establishment and stable of J. J. Aldrich & Son & Co., at the intersection of Indiana avenue and C street with 2d street. The apparatus of both the Government and city departments was promptly on the ground, but the building the street of the could do nothing further being a frame, they could do nothing further than to check the spread of the flames to the lumber yard and the Trinity Church, near by. The carpenter shop of Mr. J. W. Walker, lately of Wilmington, was destroyed, but, we believe, most of the work in it, as well as tools, were safely removed. The lumber yard of Mr. Betts, adjoining, was in great danger for some time, but by the use of the hooks of the hook and ladder companies, a portion of the stock was removed and the greater part of the yard saved; the only loss sustained by Mr. Betts being caused by breakage. Aldrich & Co. are the heaviest losers, having had on hand a large stock of feed and flour, (over three hundred barrels of the latter having been stored on Saturday,) which was totally destroyed, as were also five valuable horses, a cow and two dogs.

There had been no person attached to the firm in the building for over two hours before the fire was discovered, and there seems to be no doubt but that it was the work of an incen-

The steamers and hook and ladders were on the spot and at work in ten minutes after the alarm was sounded.

SABBATH OBSERVANCES. - The various churches of our city were well attended yes-terday, as also were the different Sabbath schools. Communion was held in many of the places of worship, and missionary and temperance meetings were held during the afternoon by the Sunday school scholars. During the evening services at Wesley Chapel President Lincoln and Mrs. Lincoln were present, together with Attorney General Bates and other prominent persons of Washington.

Mrs. Elizabeth Comstock, of the Society of Friends, was present and addressed the congregation. Rev. C. C. Burr officiated in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Dr. Nadal. Mrs. Comstock based her remarks on the words "We have no continuing city here, but we seek for one to come." She handled her subject ably, and all present were well pleased with her judgment and sound reasoning in connection with the text.

A DOUBLE MARRIAGE.-At six o'clock last evening, East Washington Methodist Church was filled to overflowing, by a large concourse of persons, who came to witness the solemnization of the marriage vows between two young couples, of the Sixth Ward. The brides were the two Misses Ella and Emma Austins, daughters of Mr. V.C. Austin, and the grooms, Mr. E. J. Palmer, clerk in the ordnance Department of the Navy Yard, and Mr. J. Orville Johnson, the well-known photographer of the Sixth Ward, (and who has now in his beautiful bride, taken the best picture of all) was performed by Rev. H. N. Sipes, each couple waiting on the other, and the knots being well tied, the large number of friends and acquaintances extended their congratulations.
